

Brewery from Akita

”Taiheizan”

“Taiheizan,” internationally known by its “Tenko” super premium label, is named for the massive mountain that pierces the horizon just east of Akita prefecture's capital city. Taiheizan sake first captured Japan's attention when introduced as the first chilled sake in 1933. Since then it has been winning awards at home and abroad. Japan's 1934 National Sake Competition named it first among 5,169 competitors. London's International Wine Challenge awarded Taiheizan its 1st Place Gold Trophy in 2009 and Ginjo/Daiginjo Trophy in 2014.

Shinichiro Kodama, the president, will be the guest, and Christopher Hughes will explain in English.
